COUNCIL ELECTS OFFICERS.

W. A. Glasgow Re-elected City Solicitor, R. E. Coleman Clerk and B. L. Greenwood Assistant Clerk of the Market. Other Minor Offices Filled-Salaries Fixed and Appropriations Made.

The City Council elected officers last night, and as a result there were a good many surprises when the numberless roll calls had ceased. J. H. Wingate defeated Engineer Dunlap, Glasgow was re-elected city solicitor, Dr. Cannaday defeated Dr. Strickland for city physician. The other positions were filled by the present incumbents.

It was 8:30 o'clock when the Council was called to order. Every member was in his place and the jam in the Council chamber showed the great interest manifested in the election of officers.

The mayor submitted his first message to the Council, which was the first document taken up for consideration. He stated that the few cases of smallpox which had been in the city had nearly all been stamped out, and the disease eradicated. He thought that the city would come out with an expense of something less than $1,000 on account of the disease. He also reported that his attention had been called to the condition of the reservoir of the Gas and Water Company, and that the same was thought to be unhealthy on account of a green scum on the surface of the water. He had written a letter to the company's manager, calling attention to it, and asking for a report. Mr. Rawn had replied that the green scum was a vegetable growth, called "Alga" and was harmless, but that this would be removed.

The mayor also reported on the num-

A VERDICT OF ACQUITTAL.

At 2:45 the jury returned, and, during breathless suspense on the part of those interested, took their seats in the jury box. The accused was sent for and the jury polled. The foreman arose, and, in a clear, strong voice, announced the verdict. Immediately there was applause, followed by a scene seldom witnessed in any court.

The accused, his counsel, friends and the public united in congratulations, handshaking and rejoicing with the jury upon their verdict. Court was immediately adjourned without formality, and the accused returned to his hotel, the Irvine House, where congratulations and handshaking were renewed. So ended the Irvine case, which has been the all absorbing topic in this community for the past five months.

Notice has been filed of a suit in civil action against Mr. Irvine by the trustees of the defunct Bank of Lexington, looking to the recovery of the amounts overdrawn by C. W. Irvine & Co., of which C. M. Figgatt, the defaulting cashier, was the company.

Cap'n Dick gave his fellow Magicians an object lesson yesterday on how to kill the bal! without spoiling the hide. When he faced McKenna the second time he lined the ball into far center field, and when it reached the diamond he was safely perched on the third bag. The next time he came up the sphere sailed into extreme right field, and the net result was two bags. On his last appearance at the plate the leather vanished over left field fence.

Fultz came along with a home run Fultz came along with a home run and two singles as his contribution to the pile of hits made off McKenna, while Stahl's brace of two baggers and Clark's double and phantom single helped the good cause along. The visitors opened up on Fry savagely in the first inning. Plock, the first man up, hit the first ball pitched and trotted home while the ball was being recovered from the corn field beyond the left field fence. Fry sent Smith to first on balls. Berryhill forced him at second, but got there himself on McIntyre's single. Thompson filled the corners by walking to first on called balls, and Ferguson met the situation by hitting safely into right field and sending home Berryhill and McIntyre. At this stage of the game Fry was taken out and Lloyd took his place. With Thompson on third and Ferguson on second, Schabel hit to Cavanaugh, who threw out Thompson at the plate. Schabel kept on to second and Welch lined the ball down to Padden, who made no attempt to retire the big catcher, but got the ball back home in time to cut off Ferguson. The double play was brilliantly executed and fully merited the hearty applause it evoked. Leahy's single and stolen base, Plock's out at first and a wild pitch gave the visitors their fourth and last run in the second. After that they failed to get a runner past the middle corner.

McKenna began to take his punishment in the initial inning. Fultz pushed a beauty over the wall for a home run. Little also drove a long fly to right field, which the fielder reached but failed to hold, the runner going to third when McIntyre dropped the ball on the throw in. A wild plich scored Little. Two more came around in the second on Cavanaugh's base on balls, singles by Welch and Viox, a brace of stolen bases for the latter, and Lloyd's out at first when Schabel failed to hold the third strike. Stahl's double and Padden's triple added one in the third. Two earned runs counted in the fifth on Little's single and doubles by Stahl and Padden, A base on balls for Viox and doubles by Clark and Sherer brought in two more in the eighth, while Padden's drive over left fence made the tenth and last run.

THE HENLEY REGATTA.

The British Boat Failed to Start or Time.

Henley-on-Thames, July 9.—The first day of the fifty-sixth anniversary of the water derby of Great Britain was a disappointment. Cornell was pitted against the crew of the Leander Boat Club composed of ex-Oxford and Cambridge oersmen and said to be the strongest on the river.

When the umpire asked if the two crewegwere ready Cornell promptly answered "Yes," and the umpire claims Leander did the same. This the Leanders deny. In any case the umpire gave the word "Go" and the Cornell shot away, and the umpire allowed Cornell to pull over the course and awarded the Americans the race. The Leanders have lodged a protest against the umpire's decision and it was referred to the board of stewards. But the board will not change the decision.

The scene on the river was one of unusual animation even for these terms and the property of the corner of the

When the first crews were started at noon a very strong wind was blowing from the Buckinghamshire shore, giv-ing the crews pulling on that side of the river a great advantage. When the umpire put the crews in position Cornell was first in place, and Leander slowly paddled to the point assigned to that crew. Leander, at the word "Go," started, half the crew pulling for dear life; but the others turned and shouted, "On, not ready."

The umpire waved his hand to Cornell, which crew had taken the word promptly when the word was given, shot ahead and continued over the course.

The Leanders, until the umpire's The Leanders, until the unpires launch passed away out of speaking distance, continued to shout wildly: "We are not ready. Why did you serve us so?" But the umpire did not look at them and increased the speed of his tremendous pace with which they had started.

In the meantime the Cornell crew, pulling a steady, even stroke, seemed satisfied that they were in the right in continuing the race. Passing the end of Regatta Island, F. D. Colson, the Cornell coxswain, half turned and held up his hand toward the umpire's launch. But the umpire waved them on, and Colson, with a satisfied look, quickly resumed his position and gave a sharp order to the crew who had relaxed the tremendous pace with which they had started.

"An English crew would never have kept on," said an excited Britisher on the grand stand, and among the Americans the feeling was one of great disappointment. One American said: "Well, I would rather they had licked us than to have a thing like this." However, the universal opinion among the rowing authorities here was that Cornell was perfectly right in rowing over the course, and that they could have done nothing else in the face of the umpire's order.

The Cornell crew got a very good reception as they passed the winning point (time 8.11) in great style, but there was some hooting mingled with the English cheers and Cornell yells.

The board, or committee of stewards, this evening issued the following statement: "The committee, while deeply regretting the most unfortunate understanding at the start of the Cornell-Leander heat, feel that they must abide by the laws of boat racing and cannot reverse the decision of the umpire and starter. C. W. Kent, stroke of the Leander crew, said to a representative of The Associ ted Press: "An English crew would never have gone on. Had they any spirit of sport in them they would row again. Our boat was pointing into the Island and half the men were back-ing water. I had my hand raised in the ing water. I had my hand raised in the air towards the umpire when he asked: 'Are you ready?' We all cried, 'No, no.' I have rowed in many races and I never met with such unsportsmanlike conduct. We had not heard the umpire's 'Go' when the mess was made." Another member of the crew remarked: "We do not want any more such crews as Cornot want any more such crews as Cor-

As a matter of fact, the Cornell crew are not only strictly within their rights, but, in view of the umpire's orders, they could not well have done otherwise. It would not well have done otherwise. It would have been a pretty Quixotic thing had they disobeyed the umpire and returned to the post, but meantime Leander would probably have gone on and won the race. It is the Leanders who are showing a most unsportsmanlike spirit, and in every way trying to discredit the Americans.

MURDERED IN COLD BLOOD.

A Father and Son Shot by a Kentucky Mob.

The Meb Visit the House of Joseph Howton, and Seizing His Son, Who Went to the Door, Shot Him Seven Times-They Beturn and Murder the Louisville, Ky. July 9—A special to the Post from Princeton, Ky., says: A mob of masked men went to the residence of Jos. Howton, at Lewiston, eight miles from this city, last night and murdered him and his son, Howiet Howton. Just as the clock struck 12 one of the mob knocked on the door and asked to see Howlet Howton. He came to the door and was seized and pulled outside and shot through the body. The mob then dragged him to the gate and shot him seven times.

After they finished him the gang went back to the house. The white haired father begged that they spare his life and lives of his family, but his entreaties were unheeded, and they made him back up into a corner so they could shoot him without danger to his wife and daughters. The leader deliberately counted ten and then five of the men fired at the old man. One ball struck him in the wrist, another in the abdomen and a third in the groin. The men then left the house, taking with them a boy who worked on Howton's farm. They carried him to a vacant building and fastened him up, telling him they would kill him if he attempted to escape before daylight.

One of the women was sobadly frightened that she was utterly prostrated, and her death is looked for. There is no theory as to the cause of the mob's action.
